LETTERS from a FARMER in PENNSYLVANIA, to the Inhabitants of the BRITISH COLONIES.

LETTER X.

My dear Countrymen,

THE conſequences mentioned in the laſt letter will not be the utmoſt limits of our miſery and infamy, if the late act is acknowledged to be binding upon us. We feel too ſenſibly, that any miniſterial meaſures * relating to theſe colonies are ſoon carried ſucceſsfully through the parliament. Certain prejudices operate there, ſo ſtrongly againſt us, that it may be juſtly queſtioned, whether all the provinces united, will ever be able effectually to call to an account before the parliament, any miniſter who ſhall abuſe the power by the late act given to the crown in America. He may divide the ſpoils torn from us in what manner he pleaſes, and we ſhall have no way of making him reſponſible. If he ſhould order, that every Governor ſhall have a yearly ſalary of £. 5000 ſterling; every Chief Juſtice of £. 3000; every inferior officer in proportion; and ſhould then reward the moſt profligate, ignorant, or needy dependants on himſelf, or his friends, with places of the greateſt truſt, becauſe they were of the greateſt profit. This would be called an arrangement in conſequence of the "adequate proviſion for defraying the charge of the adminiſtration of juſtice and the ſupport of civil government." And if the taxes ſhould prove at any time inſufficient to anſwer all the expences of the numberleſs offices, which miniſters may pleaſe to create, ſurely the houſe of commons, will be ſo "modeſt" as not to contradict a miniſter who ſhall tell them, it is become neceſſary to lay a new tax upon the colonies, for the laudable purpoſes of defraying the charges of the "adminiſtration of juſtice and ſupport of civil government" among them. Thus in fact, we ſhall be † taxed by miniſters. In ſhort it will be in their power to ſettle upon us any civil, eccleſiaſtical, or military eſtabliſhment, which they chuſe.

We may perceive, by the example of Ireland, how eager miniſters are to ſeize upon any ſettled revenue, and apply it in ſupporting their own power. Happy are the men, and happy the people, who grow wiſe by the misfortunes of others. Earneſtly, my dear countrymen, do I beſeech the author of all good gifts, that you may grow wiſe in this manner; and if I may be allowed to take ſuch a liberty, I beg leave to recommend to you in general as the beſt method of attaining this wiſdom, diligently to ſtudy the hiſtories of other countries. You will there find all the arts that can poſſibly be practiced by cunning rulers, or falſe patriots among yourſelves, ſo fully delineated, that changing names, the account would ſerve for your own times.

It is pretty well known on this continent, that Ireland has, with a regular conſiſtency of injuſtice, been cruelly treated by miniſters in the article of penſion; but there are ſome alarming circumſtances relating to that ſubject, which I wiſh to have better known amongſt us.

§ The revenue of the crown there ariſes principally from the exciſe granted "for pay of the army, and defraying other public charges, in defence and preſervation of the kingdom"——from the tonnage and additional poundage granted "for protecting the trade of the kingdom at ſea, and augmenting the public revenue"——from the hearth money granted as a "public revenue, for public charges and expences." There are ſome other branches of the revenue, concerning which there is not any expreſs appropriation of them for public ſervice, but which were plainly ſo intended.

Of theſe branches of the revenue the crown is only a truſtee for the public. They are unalienable. They are inapplicable to any other purpoſes, but thoſe, for which they were eſtabliſhed; and therefore are not legally chargeable with penſions. There is another kind of revenue, which is a private revenue. This is not limited to any public uſes; but the crown has the ſame property in it, that any perſon has in his eſtate. This does not amount at the moſt to fifteen thouſand pounds a year, probably not to ſeven, and is the only revenue, that can legally be charged with penſions.

If miniſters were accuſtomed to regard the rights or happineſs of the people, the penſions in Ireland would not exceed the ſum juſt mentioned: But long ſince have they exceeded that limit; and in December 1765, a motion was made in the houſe of commons in that kingdom, to addreſs his Majeſty on the great increaſe of penſions on the Iriſh eſtabliſhment, amounting to the ſum of £. 158,685——in the two laſt years.

Attempts have been made to gloſs over theſe groſs incroachments, by this ſpecious argument.—"That expending a competent part of the public revenue in penſions, from a principle of charity or generoſity, adds to the dignity of the crown; and is therefore, uſeful to the public." To give this argument any weight, it muſt appear, that the penſions proceed from "charity or generoſity" only—and that it "adds to the dignity of the crown," to all directly contrary to law.——

From this conduct toward Ireland, in open violation of law, we may eaſily foreſee what we may expect, when a miniſter will have the whole revenue of America in his own hands, to be diſpoſed of at his own pleaſure: For all the monies raiſed by the late act, are to be "applied by virtue of warrants under the ſign manual, counterſigned by the High Treaſurer, or any three of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury." The "RESIDUE" indeed is to be "paid into the receipt of the exchequer, and to be diſpoſed of by parliament." So that a miniſter will have nothing to do but to take care, that there ſhall be no "reſidue," and he is ſuperior to all controul.

Beſides the burden of perſons in Ireland which have enormouſly encreaſed within theſe few years, almoſt all the offices in that poor kingdom have been ſince the commencement of the preſent century, and now are beſtowed upon ſtrangers. For though the merit of perſons born there, juſtly raiſes them to places of high truſt when they go abroad, as all Europe can witneſs, yet he is an uncommonly lucky Iriſhman, who can get as good a poſt in his native country.

When I conſider the † manner in which that iſland has been uniformly depreſſed for ſo many years paſt, with

TING MEN OF THAT KINGDOM TO BETRAY THEIR COUNTRY; and men of the neighbouring Kingdom, to betray both.——If Iriſh penſions have been procured, TO SUPPORT GAMESTERS AND GAMING HOUSES; promoting a vice which threatens national ruin.——If penſions have been purloined out of the national treaſure of Ireland, under the MASK OF SALARIES ANNEXED TO PUBLIC OFFICES, USELESS TO THE NATION newly invented for THE PURPOSES OF CORRUPTION.—If Ireland, juſt beginning to recover from the deva ſtations of maſſacres and rebellion, be obſtructed in the progreſs of her cure BY SWARMS OF PENSIONARY VULTURES PREYING ON HER VITALS.——If by ſquandering the national ſubſtance of Ireland in a LICENTIOUS, UNBOUNDED PROFUSION OF PENSIONS; inſtead of employing it in nouriſhing and improving her infant agriculture, trade and manufactures, or in enlightening and reforming her poor, ignorant, deluded, miſerable natives, by nature moſt amiable, moſt valuable, moſt worthy of public attention.——If by ſuch abuſe of the national ſubſtance, ſloth and naſtineſs, cold and hunger, nakedneſs and wretchedneſs, popery, depopulation and barbariſm, ſtill maintain their ground; ſtill deform a country, abounding with all the riches of nature; yet, hitherto deſtined to beggary.——If SUCH PENSIONS be found on the Iriſh eſtabliſhment, let ſuch be cut off; and let the penſioners adviſers be branded with indelible characters of public infamy; adequate, if poſſible, to the diſhonour of their crime.

† In Charles the ſecond's time the houſe of commons influenced by ſome factious demagogues were reſolved to prohibit the importation of Iriſh cattle into England. Among other arguments in favour of Ireland it was inſiſted——"That by cutting off almoſt entirely the trade between the kingdoms, ALL THE NATURAL BANDS OF UNION WERE DISSOLVED, and nothing remained to keep the Iriſh in their duty but force and violence."

"The King (ſays Mr. Hume in his hiſtory of England) was ſo convinced of the juſtneſs of theſe reaſons, that he uſed all his intereſt to oppoſe the bill, and he openly declared, that he could not give his aſſent to it with a ſafe conſcience. But the commons were reſolute in their purpoſe.——" And the ſpirit of TYRANNY of which NATIONS are as ſuſceptible as individuals, had animated the Engliſh extremely to exert their ſuperiority over their dependant ſtate. No affair could be conducted with greater violence than this by the commons. They even went ſo far in the preamble of the bill, as to declare the importation of Iriſh cattle, to be a NUISANCE. By this expreſſion they gave ſcope to their paſſion, and at the ſame time barred the King's prerogative, by which he might think himſelf entitled to diſpenſe with a law, SO FULL OF INJUSTICE AND BAD POLICY. The Lords expunged the word, but as the king was ſenſible that no ſupply would be given by the commons unleſs they were gratified in all their PREJUDICES, he was obliged both to employ his intereſt with the peers, to make the bill paſs, and to give the royal aſſent to it. He could not however forbear expreſſing his diſpleaſure, at the jealouſy entertained againſt him, and at the intention which the commons diſcovered, of retrenching his prerogative.

This law brought great diſtreſs for ſome time upon Ireland, but it has eſtabliſhed their applying with greater induſtry to manufactures, and has proved in the iſſue beneficial to that kingdom."

Perhaps the ſame reaſon occaſioned the "harring the King's prerogatives" in the late act ſuſpending the legiſlation of New-York.

This we may be aſſured of, that we are as dear to his Majeſty, as the people of Great-Britain are. We are his ſubjects as well as they, and as faithful ſubjects; and his Majeſty has given too many, too conſtant proofs of his piety and virtue, for any man to think it poſſible, that ſuch a prince can make any unjuſt diſtinction between ſuch ſubjects. It makes no difference to his Majeſty, whether ſupplies are raiſed in Great-Britain or America; but it makes ſome difference to the commons of that kingdom.

To ſpeak plainly, as becomes an honeſt man on ſuch important occaſions, all our misfortunes are owing to a LUST OF POWER in men of abilities and influence. This prompts them to ſeek popularity by expedients profitable to themſelves though ever ſo deſtructive to their country.

Such is the accurſed nature of lawleſs ambition, and yet—What heart but melts at the thought!——Such falſe, deteſtable PATRIOTS, in every nation have led their blind, confiding country, ſhouting their applauſes, into the jaws of ſhame and ruin. May the wiſdom and goodneſs of the people of Great-Britain, ſave them from the uſual fate of nations.

§ The laſt Iriſh parliament continued 33 years during all the King's reign. The preſent parliament there has continued from the beginning of this reign, and probably will continue till this reign ends.

† I am informed that within theſe few years, a petition was preſented to the houſe of commons, ſetting forth, "that herrings were imported into Ireland from ſome foreign parts of the North ſo cheap, as to diſcourage the Britiſh herring fiſhery, and therefore praying ſome remedy might be applied in that behalf by parliament."

That upon this petition, the houſe came to a reſolution to impoſe a duty of two ſhillings ſterling on every barrel of foreign herrings imported into Ireland; but afterwards dropt the affair, for fear of engaging in a diſpute with Ireland about the right of TAXING her.

So much higher was the opinion, which the houſe entertained of the ſpirit of Ireland, than of that of theſe colonies.

I find in the laſt Engliſh papers, that the reſolution and firmneſs with which the people of Ireland have lately aſſerted their freedom have been ſo alarming in Great-Britain, that the Lord Lieutenant in his ſpeech on the 20th of laſt October, "recommended to that parliament, that ſuch proviſion may be made for ſecuring the judges in the enjoyment of their offices and appointments during good behaviour, as ſhall be thought moſt expedient."

What an important conceſſion is this, obtained by making demands becoming freemen, with a courage and perſeverance becoming freemen!

‡ One of the reaſons urged by that great and honeſt ſtateſman, Sir William Temple, to Charles II. in his famous remonſtrance, to diſſuade him from aiming at arbitary power, was, that the King "had few offices to beſtow. Hume's hiſtory of England.

"Though the wings of prerogative have been clipt, the influence of the crown is greater than ever it was in any period of our hiſtory. For when we conſider in how many boroughs the government has the votes at command. When we conſider the vaſt body of perſons employed in the collection of the revenue, in every part of the kingdom, the incontrolable number of placemen and candidates for places in the cuſtoms, in the exciſe, in the poſt office, in the dock-yards, in the ordnance, in the ſalt-office, in the ſtamps, in the navy and victualling-offices, and in a variety of other departments. § The laſt Iriſh parliament continued 33 years during all the King's reign. The preſent parliament there has continued from the beginning of this reign, and probably will continue till this reign ends.

So much higher was the opinion, which the houſe entertained of the ſpirit of Ireland, than of that of theſe colonies.

I find in the laſt Engliſh papers, that the reſolution and firmneſs with which the people of Ireland have lately aſſerted their freedom have been ſo alarming in Great-Britain, that the Lord Lieutenant in his ſpeech on the 20th of laſt October, "recommended to that parliament, that ſuch proviſion may be made for ſecuring the judges in the enjoyment of their offices and appointments during good behaviour, as ſhall be thought moſt expedient."

What an important conceſſion is this, obtained by making demands becoming freemen, with a courage and perſeverance becoming freemen!

‡ One of the reaſons urged by that great and honeſt ſtateſman, Sir William Temple, to Charles II. in his famous remonſtrance, to diſſuade him from aiming at arbitary power, was, that the King "had few offices to beſtow. Hume's hiſtory of England.

"Though the wings of prerogative have been clipt, the influence of the crown is greater than ever it was in any period of our hiſtory. For when we conſider in how many boroughs the government has the votes at command. When we conſider the vaſt body of perſons employed in the collection of the revenue, in every part of the kingdom, the incontrolable number of placemen and candidates for places in the cuſtoms, in the exciſe, in the poſt office, in the dock-yards, in the ordnance, in the ſalt-office, in the ſtamps, in the navy and victualling-offices, and in a variety of other departments. The endleſs dependencies created by the obligations conferred on the bulk of the gentlemen's families throughout the kingdom, who have relations preferred in our navy and numerous ſtanding army.

matter to prove that the people have decreaſed.

Surely therefore, thoſe who wiſh the welfare of their country, ought ſeriouſly to reflect, what may be the conſequences of ſuch a new creation of offices in the diſpoſal of the crown. The army, the adminiſtration of juſtice, and the civil government here, with ſuch ſalaries as the crown ſhall pleaſe to annex, will extend miniſterial influence as much beyond its former bounds, as the late war did the Britiſh dominions.

But whatever the people of Great-Britain may think on this occaſion, I hope the people of theſe colonies will unanimouſly join in this ſentiment, that the late act of parliament is injurious to their liberty; and that this ſentiment will unite them in a firm oppoſition to it, in the ſame manner as the dread of the Stamp act did.

Some perſons may imagine the ſums to be raiſed by it, are but ſmall, and therefore may be inclined to acquieſce under it. A conduct more dangerous to freedom, as before has been obſerved, can never be adopted! Nothing is wanted at home but a * PRECEDENT, the force of which ſhall be eſtabliſhed, by the tacit ſubmiſſion of the colonies. With what zeal was the ſtatute erecting the poſt-office, and another relating to the recovery of debts in America, urged and tortured as precedents in ſupport of the Stamp act, though wholly inapplicable. If the parliament ſucceeds in this attempt, other ſtatutes will impoſe other duties. Inſtead of taxing ourſelves, as we have been accuſtomed to do, from the firſt ſettlement of theſe provinces, all our uſual taxes will be converted into parliamentary taxes on our importations; and thus the parliament will levy upon us ſuch ſums of money as they chuſe to take, without any other limitation, than their pleaſure.

We know how much labour and care have been beſtowed by theſe colonies, in laying taxes in ſuch a manner that they ſhould be moſt eaſy to the people, by being laid on the proper articles; moſt equal, by being proportioned to every man's circumſtance; and cheapeſt, by the method directed for collecting them.

But parliamentary taxes will be laid on us without any conſideration, whether there is any eaſier mode. The only point regarded will be the certainty of levying the taxes, and not the convenience of the people on whom they are to be levied; and therefore all ſtatutes on this head will be ſuch as will be moſt likely, according to the favourite phraſe, "to execute themſelves."

Taxes in every free ſtate have been, and ought to be, as exactly proportioned as is poſſible to the abilities of thoſe who are to pay them; they cannot otherwiſe be juſt. Even a Heteniot would comprehend the unreaſonableneſs, of making a poor man pay as much for "defending" the property of a rich man, as the rich man pays himſelf.

Let any perſon look into the late act of parliament, and he will immediately perceive, that the immenſe eſtates of Lord Fairfax, Lord † Baltimore, and our Proprietors, which are amongſt his Majeſty's other "dominions" to be "defended, protected, and ſecured" by the act, will not pay a ſingle farthing for the duties thereby impoſed, except Lord Fairfax wants ſome of his windows glazed. Lord Baltimore and our Proprietors are quite ſecure, as they live in England.

I mention theſe particular caſes as ſtriking inſtances how far the late act is a deviation from the principle of juſtice, which has conſtantly diſtinguiſhed our own laws on this continent, and ought to be regarded in all laws.

The third conſideration with our conſtitutional aſſemblies in laying taxes, has been the method of collecting them. This has been done by a few officers, under the inſpection of the reſpective aſſemblies, with moderate allowances. No more was raiſed from the ſubject, than was uſed for the intended purpoſes. But by the late act, a miniſter may appoint as many officers as he pleaſes for collecting the taxes; may aſſign them what ſalaries he thinks "adequate;" and they are ſubject to no inſpection but his own.

In ſhort if the late act of parliament takes effect, thoſe colonies dwindle down into "common corporations," as their enemies in the debates concerning the repeal of the Stamp act, ſtrenuouſly inſiſted they were; and it ſeems not improbable that ſome future hiſtorian may thus record our fall.

"The eighth year of this reign was diſtinguiſhed by a very memorable event, the American colonies then ſubmitting for the FIRST time to be taxed by the Britiſh parliament. An attempt of this kind had been made about two years before, but was defeated by the vigorous exertion of the ſeveral provinces, in defence of their liberties. Their behaviour on that occaſion rendered their name very celebrated for a ſhort time all over Europe; all ſtates being extremely diſpoſed to favour the cauſe of thoſe, who ſeemed reſolved to defend their liberties againſt the moſt powerful invaſion. Their behaviour on that occaſion rendered their name very celebrated for a ſhort time all over Europe; all ſtates being extremely a diſpute between Great-Britain, and ſo conſiderable a part of her dominions. For as ſhe was thought to be grown too powerful, by the ſucceſsful concluſion

When, I ſay, we conſider, how wide, how binding a dependance on the crown is created by the above enumerated particulars, and the great, the enormous weight and influence which the crown derives from this extenſive dependance upon its favour and power; any lord in waiting, any lord of the bed-chamber, any man may be appointed miniſter."

A doctrine ſo this act is ſaid to have been the advice of L——H—— Late news paper.

* "Here may be obſerved, that when any antient law or cuſtom of parliament is broken; and the crown poſſeſt of a precedent, how difficult a thing will it reſtore the ſubject again to his former freedom and ſafety." 2d. Cole's Inſt. p. 529.

"It is not almoſt credible to forſee, which any maxim of fundamental law of this realm is altered (as alſo where hath been obſerved) what dangerous inconveniences do follow." 4th Cole's Inſt. p. 41.

† Maryland and Penſylvania have been engaged in the warmeſt diſputes, in order to obtain an equal and juſt taxation of their proprietors eſtates; but the late act of parliament does more for theſe proprietors than they themſelves would venture to demand. It totally exempts them from taxation——though their vaſt eſtates are to be ſecured by the ſweat of other people.

on of the late War fhe had been engaged in, it was hoped by many, that as it had happened before to other kingdoms, civil diſcords would afford opportunities of revenging all the injuries ſuppoſed to be received from her. However, the cauſe of diſſention was removed, by a repeal of the ſtatute that had given offence. This affair rendered the ſubmiſſive conduct of the colonies ſo ſoon after, the more extraordinary; there being no difference between the mode of taxation which they oppoſed, and that to which they ſubmitted, but this, that by the firſt, they were to be deciſively reminded that they were taxed, by certain marks ſtamp on every piece of paper or parchment they uſed. The authors of that ſtatute triumphed greatly on this conduct of the colonies, and inſiſted, that if the people of Great-Britain had perſiſted in enforcing it, the Americans would have been in a few months ſo fatigued with the efforts of patriotiſm, that they would quickly have yielded obedience.

"Certain it is, that though they had before their eyes ſo many illuſtrious examples in their mother country, of the conſtant ſucceſs attending firmneſs and perſeverance in oppoſition to dangerous encroachments on liberty, yet they quietly gave up a point of the LAST IMPORTANCE. From thence the decline of their freedom began, and its decay was exceeding rapid; for as money was always raiſed upon them by the parliament, their aſſemblies grew immediately uſeleſs, and in a ſhort time contemptible: And in leſs than one hundred years, the people ſunk down into that tameneſs and ſupineneſs of ſpirit, by which they ſtill continue to be diſtinguiſhed."

Charles-Town, March 9, 1768.

Found lately,

Upon Santee-Ferry Cauſey,

A SHAGREEN WATCH CASE, ſet in pinchback mettal. The owner may apply to the printer hereof.

AS there appeared an advertiſement in Mr. Crouch's papers of the 8th inſt. ſetting forth, that the copartnerſhip of VARDELL and WILKIE, expired the 4th inſtant, without the knowledge of the latter, and notice given to the gentlemen from whom they have Negroes on hire, to take them away: they now jointly give this notice, that it will expire the 17th inſt. as the gentleman of whom the ſhop was rented, and moſt of the Negroes that are on hire, has agreed to take them by that time. And the latter gives this public notice, that he will not have any concern with Mr. Vardell, after that date.

Thoſe to whom they are indebted, are deſired to bring in their accompts; and thoſe indebted, will be furniſhed with theirs as ſoon as they can be made out. VARDELL & WILKIE.

JOHN WILKIE, acquaints his friends, that he has taken a ſhop on Eveleigh's wharf, where he purpoſes carring on the cooperage buſineſs by himſelf; as he deſigns to keep but few Negroes, and thoſe good, he can the more eaſily ſee after them; and expects by that means to recommend himſelf to a continuance of thoſe gentlemen's cuſtom, who were once pleaſed to employ him.

JOHN WILKIE.

N. B. One or two good Negro coopers are wanted on hire.

The SUBSCRIBER,

To free himſelf of incumbrances,

Will ſell, at Mr. Thomas Nightingale's, near Charles-Town, on Wedneſday the 30th day of March next, by public outcry,

For twelve months credit, with intereſt, and proper ſecurity;

HIS STONO PLANTATION, on which he now lives, containing 1676 acres, pleaſantly ſituated in St. Paul's pariſh, on Stono and Wadmelah rivers, ſurrounded with the ſalts to the ſouthward and eaſtward, 15 miles from North Ediſto inlet, and 20 miles from Charles-Town; well improved with ditches, roads, fences, and every neceſſary building. About 60 acres of good rice land, and near as much more of middling land juſt cleared, and is fit for rice, with a ſufficient reſerve of back water; and 2 or 300 acres of good corn land, in Old Field, and under good fence for a paſture or corn field; alſo upwards of 330 acres of marſh land, which by being banked in, would make excellent rice and paſture land, having a reſerve of water for the ſame, and a drain into it of near 3 miles draught from lands back; the other part of ſaid tract, is in woods of good pine for ſawing, and very fine oak, hickory, &c. and is near a landing.

And at the ſame time and place will be ſold;

THirty-four valuable SLAVES, of which 24 are grown; among them are a very good cooper, and a valuable houſe wench, and other handy ſlaves and watermen; alſo one other tract of 800 acres of land adjoining the above, all in woods of choice oak, pine, &c. except about 160 acres of good corn land, in Old-Field, has about 100 acres of flat land, through which much water paſſes; alſo one other tract of 214 acres, moſtly choice pine timber, adjoining lands of Roger Pinckney, Eſq; thro' which a good cart path paſſes from Ponpon road to Stono ferry, diſtant 2 or 3 miles.

FRANCIS YONGE.

N. B. If any perſon inclines to purchaſe the above ſettlements and negroes together, on or before the 10th day of March; out of compaſſion to the ſlaves, I will ſell them together with the land, a great bargain, and will give a ſmall ſtock of cattle, ſheep and hogs, and 2 or 300 buſhels of corn in the bargain. Any perſon deſirous of becoming a purchaſer, may apply and view the negroes and the land with an exact plat of the ſame, executed by a proper deputy-ſurveyor.

Philip Tidyman,

JEWELLER and GOLDSMITH,

Has imported in the laſt veſſels from LONDON;

A LARGE and elegant aſſortment of PLATE and JEWELLERY of all ſorts, which he ſells on the loweſt terms, eſpecially for caſh: he very little exceeds the London prices.

He alſo takes the liberty of informing thoſe who have been long in his debt, and to whom he hath often perſonally applied without any effect, that if their accompts are not paid by the firſt of April next, they will be ſued for without diſtinction.
